

A detail from a Japanese woodblock print. The background is a warm, textured tan color. Several dark brown, slender branches of a cherry tree (sakaki) are depicted, some with clusters of small, five-petaled white blossoms. The branches are adorned with fine, green, needle-like leaves. A dark, curved branch, possibly a bird's wing or tail, is visible in the center. The overall style is characteristic of early 20th-century Japanese print art.
